I have a lot of code to go thru and it would be very handy to have a workaround rather than a lengthy one with appended. Many thanks! A: If using your own code then look at how you are creating the Direct3D devices. They are only created for a specified lifetime, after which they are destroyed. You need to either use the CreateDevice function which returns a device object which you can use to create any resources you want. Or in your case you could call IDirect3DDevice8::ReleaseDevice instead of IDirect3DDevice8::ReleaseDevice and then call IDirect3DDevice8::CreateDevice. The documentation for IDirect3DDevice8::ReleaseDevice can be found here A day after being named the head coach of the Edmonton Eskimos, Rick Campbell took to the podium at Commonwealth Stadium to begin a new era of CFL football. The two-time Grey Cup winner shook hands with the crowd and then looked out on a few hundred members of the media. He said the goal is to be in a position to win the Grey Cup this year, just three seasons after the last edition was won. "I don't have any questions (about being named head coach)," Campbell said. "I'm not, you know, moving to London or something. I'm going to be the same old Rick Campbell that everybody knows." He thanked the Eskimos board, president Rob Ukleja and the 55cdc1ed1c
